MENASHA SPRINTERS ADMIRE RELAY TROPHY

Northern State Notes

ADNY weather washed out both of the Northern State league games last Sunday but open dates in the schedule provide ample time for the playoffs before the curtain drops on the first half of the season early in July.

Clintonville will try to stage its opener under the lights Thursday night with New London as the invading team. These clubs have been rivals on the diamond for years and there is always lots of action when they cross bats.

Another diamond conflict for Two Rivers Sunday where the Polar Bears will be at home to fast stepping Manitowoc Shipbuilders. Both teams have clean records and the 'top of the heap' battle should bring out a bumper throng.

In the other weekend combat, the High Lives of New London will pay a neighborly call on Seymour. Row and company had lots of trouble with the Londoners last season and the Falck hotel rooters are wondering if the jinx is still on.

Several of the Northern State league teams are trying to book games with the crack colored teams that tour out of Chicago during July and August. The House of David nine is also expected through Wisconsin around the fourth.

Joe Vnuk continues to do pretty well for an 'old fellow' in the left garden at Manitowoc. The outfielder has been playing ball for years but it hasn't dimmed his batting eye and he is one of the best batsmen in the circuit.

Larry Roek who has pitched for Sheboygan several seasons, will make his debut in a Seymour uniform after Decoration day. Roek is a speed ball right hander and is as smart as they make 'em when it comes to topping the rubber.

Rollie Meyer has started off as if he is going to have a great season with Two Rivers. The pint-sized center fielder always was a star on the defense and in the early games to date he has been hitting way above par.

Clintonville is expecting great things from Gene Volkman, the husky backstop who is mixing his baseball with studies at the Oshkosh State Teachers college. Volkman is hustling a lot this spring, and it peps up the whole squad.

There will be quite a Sheboygan throng to the Manitowoc-Two Rivers combat. Fossewitz, Schultz and Quassius are a couple of former chairs with the Cool City tribe while Suscha and Krauss, two more Sheboyganites, perform with the Shipbuilders.

Hammy Powell is prancing around like a youngster at shortstop for Seymour. He is the only leftover of the 1939 inter-networks that drew their checks from the Row-Nickodem combination but gets along fine with Clausman, Zuidmuller and Jacobs.

Stan Smogoleski, Two Rivers' veteran, likes his base hits as well as his fish. Smokey takes a man-sized cut at the ball and it generally goes places when he connects soundly. Smogoleski has always been a .300 plus batsman.

Appleton Netters Are Beaten by Neenah

Appleton High school netters, feeling pretty good about their improved ability, ran into Neenah High school team last night and dropped a 7 to 0 decision.

The squad has named Lloyd Gatz captain for this year and Bill DeLong for 1941.

Result of the matches:

Gatz lost to Miller (N) 5-7, 0-6. Nickasch lost to Erdman (N) 6-2, 3-6, 5-7.

DeLong lost to Hammett (N) 4-6, 2-6.

Bayley lost to Deicoff (N) 5-7, 3-6, 5-7.

Holtz lost to Draheim (N) 6-4, 1-6, 4-6.

Buesing lost to Redlin (N) 3-6, 0-6.

Morris lost to Johnson (N) 10-8, 3-6, 4-6.

Gatz-Bayley lost to Deicoff-Bunker (N) 4-6, 4-6.

DeLong-Nickasch lost to Erdman-Rizzo (N) 4-6, 1-6.

Blinder-Mueller lost to Miller-Hammett (N) 1-6, 2-6.

Buesing-Holtz lost to Draheim-Johnson (N) 4-6.

Chicago—Tom Turner, White Sox rookie catcher, can always land a job as a printer if he should lose out in baseball. While at North high school in Wichita, Kan., he won the state printing contest prize two successive years.

Chair Co. Errors Help Wire Works Take 8-0 Victory

Filz and Faulk Each Fan Nine Men; Winners Get Five Runs in Third

INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE
Tuesday — Pond Sports versus Coated Paper (Postponed to Friday).
Wires 8, Chairs 0.
Thursday—Fox River versus Atlas Mill.

A FALTERING Chair company infield that could give Sonny Filz little more than moral support committed enough errors yesterday to give the Appleton Wire Works an easy 8-0 victory on the Roosevelt school field.

The Wire Works team was credited with six hits, but at least three could have been easy outs. The Chairs were able to get but two hits. Filz and George Faulk, the Wires hurler, each struck out nine men. Filz walked two and Faulk, three.

The Wires turned on the power in the third inning and pushed across five runs on one hit, a walk, and four errors.

In the Wires first inning, Zimmerman was safe on an error, stole second, and went to third when a pop fly dropped for a hit. He and De Young scored on Noffke's single.

The Wires final run came in the fourth inning, Zimmerman again reaching first on an error. He went to second as De Young grounded, to third as Hebelor beat out a hit, and scored on Slattery's infield hit.

Industry Entirely Under-Equipped for War, Major Claims

Milwaukee—Major George F. Unmuth of Washington, said here last night that the United States can furnish men to defend its soil, but industrially is entirely under-equipped to put up a defense against invasion, because factories are not machined and tooled for war preparations.

Major Unmuth, head of the army chemical warfare service and in charge of industrial mobilization for national defense, addressed National Sojourners, Inc., military men's Masonic order, which opened a three-day convention.

He said he believed that Germany has not employed gas and that the allied forces have refrained for fear of reprisals.

A new model has been made of the "river-run" family, called the "go-deeper." This bait has a very large spoon-like in front which gives it the luring flash of a spoon and at the same time, an extremely lively minnow-action. As the name implies, this bait goes deep for the entire retrieve, and is particularly effective for wall-eyed pike for this reason. Incidentally, the "go-deeper" makes a mighty fine small-mouth bass bait, and wall-eyes and smallmouth are often found in the same waters. The largest wall-eyed pike taken for several years was captured out of Norris Lake, Tenn., in 1938, by O. P. Hackworth of Clinton, Tenn. This monster fish, a 16-pounder, took first prize in Field and Stream's 1938 contest, and was taken on a "river-run-spook," sinking model.

Yanks' Champ-to-Chump Flop Is Puzzler

NEW YORK—Yankee fans have always felt that "it can't happen here"—too much power, too much pitching, too much class. Now that it has happened here, now that the Yanks have experienced a prolonged slump, the fans can't figure it out.

Plump pilot Joe McCarthy fidgets his bulk on the bench. He can't figure it out either. This is a strange scene for baseball, the picture of Joe fretting and wondering what to do next, experiencing some of the worst of what has become daily routine for managers like Casey Stengel of the Bees and Connie Mack of the A's.

The Yanks just out of last place? The world champions in the cellar? It's unbelievable. The players are bewildered. They grin, uncertainly, and say: "Manana. Tomorrow. Tomorrow we'll start to go!"

He's A Sphinx McCarthy is a quiet man. Stingy with his talk. During the years that his team has been world champions he has kept his own counsel. Rarely has he conversed freely. And now that trouble has struck his forces, McCarthy is even more tight-lipped.

Slumps come and go. He can't believe that his team won't someday catch fire and smash its way back to the top. But, how much longer? There isn't much he can do. Even if he wanted to, he couldn't make a trade within the American league. It would be difficult to corral a valuable player from the National League.

And does he want new players? Should he discard one of his own stars because of a slump, perhaps a temporary lapse? Only a few weeks ago his team was hailed as the greatest in the land.

Individually, his players ranked at the top, or around it. Can these players suddenly have dropped to minor league calibre? Around the league they're wondering whether this is just a short-lived stretch of trouble or whether the Yanks actually have begun to disintegrate. This team already has stuck together longer than any of the other great machines in baseball history. Has the law of averages caught up with it?

The WORLD OF STAMPS

Every year the Swiss celebrate the anniversary of their independence—July 9, 1866. This year they are issuing a special stamp with the date 1866 beneath the monument to Semnach. It commemorates the defeat of Leopold III of Austria, killed at the battle of Semnach where Swiss from Uri, Schwyz and Unterwalden came to defend their cantons against an invading army five times as big as theirs. Semnach is about nine miles west of Lucerne, on the eastern bank of Lake Semnach. The green 5 plus 5c with the Semnach monument is one of four stamps commemorating the national fair. The wording, explaining that the purpose of the series is to raise money for the national fund and for the Red Cross, is in German. A Red Cross is in the lower right hand corner of each stamp. Another of the series is the blue 30 plus 10 with French caption including "1914 Les Rangier 1915" and symbol of a World War soldier like those who guarded the Swiss border, in World War No 1. An orange-and-black 10 plus 5 has Italian wording and an illustration symbolic of the defeat of another invader, Charles, Duke of Burgundy, the caption beneath it being, "Gronio 1478." The fourth stamp, a brick-red and black is a 20 plus 5 recalling the peace of Basel where in Switzerland and Austria were separated.

Brazil Joins Parade
From Brazil comes a beautiful 400-reis to join stamps of other Latin-American countries and the United States in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Pan-American Union. This blue 400-reis bears profile portraits of President Franklin D. Roosevelt (left) and of the Brazilian president, Dr. Getulio Vargas in which circles set into a map of which North and South America are the central part. Beneath the profile of President Roosevelt is the inscription "Uniao Pan Americana 1890-1940." And, above that of President Vargas is "Brasil correio" (Brazilian mail). Already 13 Latin-American republics and the United States have planned stamps for the same purpose. They are Argentina, Brazil, Chili, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Ecuador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay and Venezuela. The remaining seven Latin-American republics are expected to follow the recommendation of the governing board of the Pan-American Union to issue stamps. Brazil has announced issuance of 1,000,000 copies of the 400's.

The Coronado Cuarto Centennial will be celebrated in festival throughout the southwestern states where Francisco Vasquez de Coronado sought the Seven Cities of Cibola 400 years ago. And the United States Post Office department will issue a special Coronado stamp, probably not until fall, according to Postmaster-General Farley. Suggestions for the design have already been requested.

May Stiffen Requirements For Entering State Schools

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Rules stiffening entrance requirements for the state university and the state teachers colleges with a view to reducing enrollments to correspond with reduced budgets may be effective with the new school year in September, high state educational authorities disclosed here today.

The state board of normal school regents, it was learned today, has instructed the principals of the nine teachers' colleges to draft a formula which the board will consider at its July meeting, looking toward restricting admissions to the colleges those high school students who finished their secondary school courses in the upper division of their classes.

The proposal was discussed at length at the last board meeting when the regents ordered a $10 annual fee increase for teachers' college students.

Since that time, it was reported by a spokesman for the colleges here today, university officials have expressed interest in the plan to restrict enrollments, and have suggested joint action and study on the proposition.

Reflects Problems
A spokesman for the colleges said that the fee increase and the discussion of limited enrollments were direct reflections of the problems faced by the state institutions of higher education as the result of the considerably lower budgets given them by the Heil administration.

"If the state doesn't want to furnish the money to take care of them all, it is proper that only the best should be accommodated," he said. He pointed out, however, that restricting enrollment policies had been discussed before, as a means of eliminating those students "who are inevitably going to fail in college work. It seems a shame to have them spend their money, to organize classes for them, and to give them nothing but disillusionment," he added.

If the regents approve the proposed restrictions, the limitation will be based on two factors, including the rank of the student in the psychological tests given in most high schools under state supervision annually, and the student's ranking in his own class.

Although both the university and the state colleges were hard hit by the smaller operating budgets granted by the legislature during the present biennium, the effect has been most pronounced on the colleges, mainly because of substantially higher enrollments. Some college salaries have already been cut. Total college enrollment this year is about 8,000, although 6,000 is considered capacity. The 10 year average enrollment is about 5,000.

League Changes Tactics in Fight for Increased Aids

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Interests affected by the state government's direct relief policy are going to change their lobbying tactics this year, it has been revealed here. The League of Wisconsin Municipalities, one of the spearheads of the movement in past legislative sessions working for larger state relief budgets, this week issued a broadside appeal calculated to have an effect in the forthcoming state campaigns calling attention to the consistently parsimonious state relief budgets, and demanding relief for local governments which now have to bear the brunt of the load through assessments on general property.

The league in a graphic presentation of state relief statistics, showed that the total disbursements in the last decade have increased almost 20 times, from less than $7,000,000 in 1920 to more than $110,000,000 in 1939.

While showing that the federal government still bears the greatest share of the total load, the message pointed out also that the localities share has increased tremendously, and is still increasing, while state participation remains at a relatively low level.

Burden Increases
In the span of a single year, from 1938 to 1939, according to the league, the local governments' relief burden rose from less than $30,000,000 to almost $36,000,000 while the state monies available increased from less than $7,000,000 to $7,600,000. Thus, it was shown, the state government supports considerably less than 10 per cent of the total welfare cost in Wisconsin, while the localities are presently responsible for about a third of the total.

"The local officials of Wisconsin are much concerned over the trend of the state, which have become a heavy burden on those who must pay property taxes levied on homes and farms," says Mayor James R. Law of Madison, president of the league in a message "to those interested in reducing the tax burden on homes and farms."

"It is our belief that since the property owners of this state are not alone responsible for this depression, it is unfair that these mounting public assistance costs should be paid for largely from property taxes, and it is our hope that this situation can be corrected at the next session of the legislature," he said.

New London—Lois Schoenick, one of 120 freshmen who submitted to tuberculin skin tests at Washington high school Tuesday, just looked at the ceiling and took it with a smile when the administering physician, Dr. H. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keuben Schoenick and will return with the other students Thursday to have the test studied for its reaction. 'Their Own Country'
Among Books Released for Circulation

New London—A new novel by Alice Tisdale Hobart, author of "Oil for the Lamps of China," is featured among new volumes at the New London Public library this week. In "Their Own Country," she brings Hester and Stephen Chase back to their own country, sets them down in the midst of its teeming uncertainty, writing of American life as one thoroughly familiar with all its phases.

The story of men and women journalists who cover international disasters is told by Martha Gellhorn, only woman journalist regularly employed as a war correspondent, in "A Stricken Field." During the last three years she has covered the wars in Spain and Finland and the catastrophe of Czechoslovakia.

In "It Was Like This: Two Stories of the Great War," Hervey Allen writes of two contrasted types, a U. S. lieutenant and a corporal, and two kinds of fighting. "Report to Major Roberts" tells of four American companies cut off by German barrage in the Allied retreat from the Marne in July, 1918, and "Blood Lust" describes an American attack on the town of Fismette in early August, 1918.

The story of Black John Smith, uncrowned ruler of the outlaws of Halfaday Creek in the wastes of the Yukon, is told by James B. Hendryx in "The Czar of Halfaday Creek."

Not Always Best to Set Up Solid Suit

BY ELY CULBERTSON

When the average bridge player sets out to establish tricks for himself, he is inclined to select a suit which is almost solid, in preference to another suit in which he is missing two high honors. This, of course, is nothing but common sense if the tricks being established are in sufficient number to round out the contract. Obviously, the answer to this problem lies in simple arithmetic. Notice today's hand:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

NORTH		EAST
♠ K J 10 9 8		♠ A 8 6 5 3
♥ K 10		♥ A 7 3 2
♦ A 7 4 3		♦ Q 6
♣ 10 9 8 5		♣ 7 3

SOUTH		NORTH
♠ K 10		♠ 1 heart
♥ Q 6		♥ 2 hearts
♦ 3 8 5 4 3 2		♦ 3 as trump
♣ K Q		♣ 3 as trump

The bidding was rather vigorous, but not to be criticized. North's opening bid was sound, as was South's first response. North was not enthusiastic about rebidding but, logically enough, felt that a minor suit contract would not return a good match-point score, hence rebid his fairly strong heart suit. South had too much scattered strength to retire from the auction so early. From his point of view, a game was well within the bounds of reason. When the two no trump bid reached North, the latter revised his estimate of his hand in the light of the honors in every suit and rather than hang one short of game, went to three no trump.

It will be observed that considerable "duplication of values" existed in the North-South hands by reason of the fact that, although they had four spade honors, they had only one stopper. Offsetting this bad luck, however, was the fact that West had a normal club opening, which meant that the defenders could not get their spade suit established immediately. Declarer captured West's club jack with the king and immediately counted potential tricks. It was, of course, very tempting to knock out the heart ace and insure four heart tricks, but a moment's thought gave declarer strength to resist that temptation. He knew that the moment one of them took the heart ace, he would pounce upon the spade suit, with the nine missing spades divided as well as possible, this shift would immediately establish four spade tricks for the opposition. Meanwhile, declarer would be settling up only four heart tricks, one spade, and three clubs for himself, which would be just one short of his goal.

Rather than virtually concede defeat, declarer embarked on a bolder plan. Upon winning the first trick, he went out to establish diamonds, his seven card suit. Moreover, he made the correct guess concerning the ace and queen, by the simple expedient of making the proper play. On leading up to the K-10 of diamonds (West playing low), declarer went up with the king on this logical basis: If the diamond ace lay in East's hand, and declarer forced it out by playing the ten, he could return a club, taking out declarer's entry in that suit, and then if the spade ace lay in West's hand, declarer never would be able to enter his own hand to run the diamonds even if they were all good for the king in dummy would block the suit. The best chance by far was to play West for the diamond ace and East for the queen. In this way, at least the suit could not become blocked.

Obviously, this proper plan was highly successful. The diamond king held and a diamond return dropped the queen and ace together. Now, although West made the shift to spades, the defenders could not prevent declarer from taking six diamond tricks, one spade, and two clubs, for the success of his contract.

TOMORROW'S HAND

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Lovely Anna Neagle exquisitely groomed wearing a sheer summer dress. Her hair gets special care during the hot California summer.

There are a few things which a busy girl should take time now to buy—clothes and beauty aids which will make those hot summer days more bearable. Usually we wait until the heat wave strikes us before realizing we are not prepared.

First of all, easy shoes are vital. You know feet have a way with them of rebelling when hot, humid days arrive and no shoe, unless it is light in weight, roomy and with lower heel, can make our feet comfortable.

There are rainy days in summer just as there are in spring so we should have a dark straw hat which will key in with most of our wardrobe, as well as stand up under a few splashes. A print dress, with a dark background is another good send, one which does not require frequent laundering of collars and cuffs. You know how lazy one grows when the temperature rises, and anything like changing collars and cuffs can become a major chore.

Buy a couple of sheer slips which will not stick to you when your body gets hot. Sheer, washable slips. And a lightweight girdle of one of those easy stretching fabrics which are quite porous. Most of us do need some sort of girdle even in the summertime if for no other reason than to hold up our stockings. Somehow, twisted tops or rounds garters never keep our hose as snugly in place as do garters attached to a light girdle or garter belt. These lighter fabrics can take a lot of shampooing, and that too is something to consider if you wish to keep meticulously dainty.

Notions and Accessories
Right now order in a fresh supply of shields and take an hour to tack them into your dresses and blouses. If you perspire very freely and find it difficult to walk because your thighs chafe purchase a couple of those small rubberized thigh protectors which have become so favored in the past couple of years. Any notion counter sells them.

All your gloves should be washable whether they be cotton, silk or doeklin. Suede and kid and other leathers are not for hot weather wear. You ruin them when your palms grow moist. If your supply of handkerchiefs is pretty low you might pick up a few of those too. Strange how quickly one runs out of fresh hankies.

Your Cosmetics
Naturally the creams and lotions and make-up aids which you used during colder days will not do now. Lighter texture cleansers, thinner powder base, darker colored face powder, brighter lip coloring, sun glasses, a sun oil or cream—should all be on your shopping list. And so should certain protective salves and oils for your hair. Once Old Sol begins to burn on your head those hours when you like going without a hat, your scalp will need special care during the hot California summer.

and hair will need superficial lubrication. Don't let it fade and dry and grow mousey looking—lovely, romantic moments come in summer too when you want to look your best!

Seal your heavier perfumes with adhesive and store them away until next autumn. Supply yourself with a lush, fragrant cologne and one exquisite perfume brew. Just as nature takes on lighter, brighter, more colorful dress, so should you!

Miss Lindsay will be glad to advise you on summer cosmetics. Write her care of the Post-Crescent about your beauty problem and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

Parents Usually Sacrifice Children Who Stay at Home

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—Is there anything to be done to discourage married people from chiseling on the home folks for dinner every Sunday? This is quite a problem in our house. My brother and myself both work and support our father and mother and keep our house going. All would be well except that my married sisters, with their husbands and children, descend upon us every Sunday for dinner and for supper. This means not only getting up a big Sunday dinner and supper and feeding eight extra people, but a lot of additional work and the confusion of a crowd that makes Sunday anything but a day of peace and rest. Don't you think my sisters might have a little consideration for us and stay in their own homes once in a while? But they never do, because it is cheaper and a lot less bother for them to have some one else buy their Sunday dinner for them, cook it for them and clean up after them than to do it themselves. But when I mention this to Mother she goes up in the air and says that her children are welcome to HER house whenever they want to come, forgetting that Brother and I are the ones who pay the bills. I have a good job, but a very exacting and nerve-wearing one, and the week-ends find me a wreck. But I can't have a day's rest in which to recuperate because of the Sunday crowd that descends upon us. What can I do about it?

Dorothy Dix

I am the ones who pay the bills. I have a good job, but a very exacting and nerve-wearing one, and the week-ends find me a wreck. But I can't have a day's rest in which to recuperate because of the Sunday crowd that descends upon us. What can I do about it?

FLORENCE.

Answer
The trouble with settling family problems is that you are always ground to powder between the upper and nether millstones of your wrongs and your affections. You can't demand justice as you could from a stranger, nor fight for your rights as you could with some one whom you didn't love and whose feelings you did not have to consider.

Of course, the simple and logical thing for you to do is just to have a frank talk with your sisters and tell them that while you love them and enjoy seeing them upon occasions that you can't afford to run a free boarding house.

Tell them that your ability to keep on with your job and help support your parents depends upon your having Sunday in which to maids would like to wear light summer print dresses, because they could put them to greatest use after the wedding day. Of course I don't want to make them get useless clothes. But I do think the printed material is less effective, and I can't see how they can carry flowers with it. Have you any suggestions that would help?

Answer: I agree with you that print dresses would be suitable only if your dress is to be unusually simple. On the other hand, the right print on a light-colored ground might be attractive as well as novel. Real bouquets would, it seems to me, be rather out of key. I should prefer corsage bouquets of solid color—sweet peas perhaps—and hats of this same color.

Presents for Bridesmaids
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary for the bride to give her bridesmaids presents?

Answer: Yes; at least she always does. These presents need not be expensive; they are always something personal and usually something the attendants wear or carry at the wedding.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

If you wish to whet your wits and struggle with a problem which I encounter a dozen times per day, just see what advice you would give Sally. Don't make a snap judgment as a result of emotion or prejudice, but try to imagine yourself in the judge who would endeavor to mix the maximum amount of justice with the greatest degree of mercy. Try this out on your Sunday school class next Sunday if you wish to employ the case method in practical ethics.

CASE Q-170: Sally J., aged 27, has three young children, the oldest being seven.

"My husband became infatuated with a girl at the office," she spoke unhappily.

"Finally they broke off. The girl came to me and apologized, saying she wouldn't see my husband again. But six months later they started going together once more. Now my husband has run away with her to New York. They have a baby, though we aren't divorced.

"I was destitute until I received $30 per month from the relief agency. I try to earn all I can by doing laundry work and such odd jobs, but it is pretty hard. Mr. Crane when one's children are so little.

"My husband has started sending me $20 per month, but my relief check has been reduced by that amount, so I am no better off than before. I don't know what to do. Can you advise me?"

DIAGNOSIS: If any reader thinks advising people in the conduct of their private lives is an easy job, I'd welcome his cooperation on such a case as Sally's.

Any judge or clergyman or physician or social service worker will tell you that it often requires the wisdom of Solomon to combine the utmost of justice with mercy in such cases as our dilemma today. It is apparent that this young rest, so are regrettably compelled to ask them to break up the custom of the weekly Sunday feasts.

But you will probably never summon up the nerve to do this, because you know that it will make mortal enemies of your sisters and their husbands. They will never remember with gratitude all of the good food they have grafted off of you. They will only be sore because the supply is going to be shut off.

Your mother will be furious with you because mothers always sacrifice the children who stay at home and support them to the children who leave and set up their own homes.

Mother too often is perfectly willing to work a poor, frail girl to death to supply a lazy, good-for-nothing son with free board and lodging and to make a place where her married daughters can come for a long rest and park their children for the summer, so she thinks Janeey is a mean, selfish creature if she objects to being the family goat.

So that is the position a girl is in when she has to make the choice between being enslaved to her dead-beat relatives and breaking family ties, and we all know which one Nanny will take.

But it does seem that sometimes Nanny might have a heart for poor Mother and try to protect her from the grafters who eat her out of house and home.

Time Often Heals Desire For Divorce
Dear Miss Dix—What is a woman to do whose world suddenly crumbles at her feet at the announcement that her husband wants a divorce?

My husband and I have always been happy together—at least I thought so—and he seemed contented, so it is inconceivable to me that he should want to divorce me, give up his son, break his mother's and father's hearts and forsake his religion for the sake of a girl he has only known three months. I love my husband very much and I want to do what will be most conducive to his future happiness as well as my own.

Answer:
I should say that the thing to do in your case is to play for time. Tell him that you do not want to be a dog in the manger and stand between him and his heart's desire, but that you want him to be more certain of his feelings toward this girl than he can be in the short time he has known her.

Tell him that if he will wait two years to test himself out and if he finds at the end of that time he is still in love with her, you will give him the divorce he asks.

Very often a middle-aged man becomes the victim of a sudden infatuation for a woman. Sometimes it is a girl whose freshness and beauty enchant him. Her youth brings back his own youth to him. He is allured by all of her little childish ways. He finds even her ignorance entertaining and amusing.

Or it may be an older, sophisticated woman who throws her spell over him. He is fascinated by her wit, by her knowledge of the world, by her knowledge of men, perhaps by a past which makes her a romantic figure.

So the man goes off the deep end for a while, but as he gets to know those women better, their charms fade. Their spells are broken. Youth and beauty pall in time upon the man. He finds that he has nothing in common with a young girl. Her childish chatter bores him to tears. His dream of young love becomes a nightmare and he wakes up from it.

The man who has been fascinated by the sophisticated woman discovers that they belong to different worlds, that her ideals are not his ideals, her ways are not his ways. He gets tired of wisecracking and temperance and a perpetual hunt for new sensations as he would of trying to live on a steady diet of caviar and cocktails.

Many men have these temporary infatuations and get over them and come back to home and Mother if given time. And so a wife is wise if, when her husband suddenly jumps the bars, she sits still steady for a while and gives him the opportunity to return to sanity and domesticity.

Clear Away Fire Hazards, Appoint Boys Inspectors

BY ANGELO PATRI

In every house, however carefully guarded, there is one dangerous spot where fire might enter. If the closet under the stairs is free of oily rags, oily mops, greasy paper, packing materials, old boxes, you will find a pile in the broom closet, and if that is free try the garage. If you are the happy owner of a barn, look in the corners for old paint cans and paint-stiffened brushes, and the usual rags. If you haven't heard anything so far, search the cellar. Somewhere you will find the little heap waiting for the right moment to break into flames.

We thought we were very careful about keeping the place free of rubbish. We piled newspapers neatly in an outside shed, and the wastepaper man took them. We burned all waste paper and packing in the incinerator. We used no oil for dusting so we could not have any oily mops and rags. We were downright fussy about the old barn. It had to hold hay for the donkey, but even then, everybody was warned and everybody was so careful. We thought very well of ourselves as fire wardens.

One day the man who supplies fire extinguishers came along to see how things were. He examined the attic and the hidden corners of the house, the cellar and the barn. He came out of the barn sputtering, "Thought you were careful about oily rags? Thought you never allowed any rubbish about the barn? What do you call this? I found it alongside the partition between the garage and the donkey stall. Nice mess. Ought to be ashamed of yourselves. You NEED fire extinguishers, you do."

He laid before our astounded gaze a heap of dirty, oily rags. Shook Miss Ormond and I to our feet. We recognized them. The men who had been cleaning pipes and installing others had used the rags and left them behind in the barn. The man who in all the county is strictest about fire hazards had to come and find them for us.

Spring is a good time for housecleaning. Dig out the corners, search the hidden places and leave no rubbish undiscovered. Pile it up and let the waste-gatherer take it along. Even if you are positive there is none, look.

Put One Boy in Charge
Where there are growing boys about the place, appoint one of them as inspector of the property. It is his duty to discover anything that is out of its place and to see that it is taken care of one way or another. If he points at you for dropping cigarette ashes on the garage floor, accept the hint and mend your ways. If he protests against your saving packing paper, excelsior and strings against the far-off day that you may need them, accept the warning and get rid of them.

Only rags and papers are likely to take fire voluntarily. Get rid of them. Keep matches in safe places. Set an example of caution and care so that the children respect the fear of fire. It is not necessary to talk much about the matter, but it is highly important to do everything possible to prevent fire. And a couple of pairs of dry sand in the garage won't take up much room and they might come in handy.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

LITTLE SPITFIRE

By Jean Randall

YESTERDAY: Brenda learns more about the people on The Street and is warned about Miss Ormond who minds everybody's business but her own. She quarrels with Mac again and discusses him with Isabel.

Chapter Six
"SCANDAL OF THE STREET"
THERE something special about Mac, Isabel? asked Brenda.

"Oh, that"—the green eyes grew misty, the big mouth quivered a little—"only that, as you've probably observed for yourself, my dear, I'm . . . crazy about him."

It was Brenda who broke the silence which fell. "And he—" "Doesn't know I'm on earth," was the brief reply. "Or if he does, it's only to be annoyed that I—I care. Now you have it." Her shoulders rose in her favorite hum.

Brenda's warm sympathy was aroused by this frank confession. "My dear, you remember what Thackeray said 'A woman with fair opportunities and without a positive hump, may marry whom she likes'?"

"In Thackeray's day, maybe! Not now. The competitions too keen. Heaven knows I've had opportunities enough." She went on musingly. "And I've always been a firm believer in propinquity, too. I've seen girls and men thrown together, and drift into marriage—marriages that turned out happily, too!—who wouldn't have looked at each other twice in different surroundings. But it hasn't worked with Mac and me—or not with Mac, at any rate. Why," she finished forlornly, "he won't even fight with me! And you've two jaws in a single afternoon. He told me so himself."

Brenda laughed outright. "I should hardly call that a proof of mutual attraction. As a matter of fact, Mac and I don't get on well at all. He seems always to be in the first season."

In localities where sunscald is general or where borers are numerous it is well to wrap the tree with burlap or paper to protect it during the first season.

DISPOSAL PLANT AT WEYAUWEGA STARTS OPERATING

Above is the new sewage disposal plant at Weyauwega. The new structure and equipment recently put into operation was completed at a cost of $23,000, of which $7,000 was charged to the city of Weyauwega, and the remainder was a WPA grant. A crew will soon begin beautification of the grounds surrounding the building. E. H. Gerlach is president of the city water commission, with William Rossey, secretary, and Walter Kamp the third member of the commission. Martin Kleist is superintendent of the system of waterworks and sewage in Weyauwega.

Sewage Disposal Plant in Operation at Weyauwega

Weyauwega — Weyauwega's new sewage disposal plant, which began operation recently, is an important addition to the waterworks program in this city. The project, built under WPA auspices, took nearly a year to complete, work having been started in July, 1939. Total cost of the plant was approximately $23,000, of which the city's share was about $7,000.

The service building is constructed of stone and cement with a masonry interior. Housed in this building is the office, laboratory, store room and lavatory. The gas boilers, sewage and sludge pumps, screen room, piping and valves are in the basement. This equipment provides for the primary treatment.

All sewage is passed through a fine mesh screen which removes all visible solids. From there it flows into a wet-well which equalizes the pumping. Next it is pumped into a clarifying or settling tank where it is stored for two or three hours. After being in the clarifying tank, all solids which have settled to the bottom are removed. The clarified liquid then flows into the river.

Solids taken from the clarifying tank and from the screen are pumped into an airtight concrete digester where they are kept for a period of three months. After this amount of time a gas is released by the solids or "sludge" as it is commonly called by the engineers. It will be built in the plant's special gas boiler and will provide heat for the digester and the rest of the plant. A pipeline had to be installed from the south side of the Waupaca river to the plant underneath the river bed. The line had to be completely water tight to prevent river water from entering.

At the present time the landscape has not been completed but a crew soon will begin work beautifying the entire grounds. An open house will be held later in the summer, at which time Herbert Foth of Green Bay, engineer on the project, will explain the engineering details.

Choose Shoes Carefully to Assure Useful, Healthy Feet

Madison — "Choose your shoes carefully to eliminate unnecessary foot disturbances and maintain useful and healthy feet," the state medical society advised in a health bulletin, in which valuable suggestions are given in choosing shoes to fit the foot.

"A shoe must be long enough so that the end of the big toe is not against the toe end of the shoe. When a heavy weight is lifted, the foot increases in length. The shoe must not be so long that the foot will slide forward in the shoe. A shoe should be wide enough so that the toes will not be compressed at the sides or on top. However, the shoes must also be narrow enough to prevent wrinkling of the leather. If the shoe is too wide at the toe end, the foot will slide around and corns and calluses will form. If the shoe is so wide at the heel end that the foot slides around, the shoe will not be even approximately a good fit. There should be room enough in the shoe for a medium to a highly arched foot. If there is not room enough, the instep will be pushed downward, the foot will be elongated and the arch stretched.

Proper Heel Height — "The height of the heel should depend on the ability of the foot to bend. The heels should be high enough so that the foot will not turn and so that there will be no such strain on the calves of the leg as to cause pain and cramps. Neither should the heel be so high as to cause calluses to form on the balls of the feet. Special attention is, of course, given to the shank of the shoe. The shank should fit the individual foot.

"Custom and fashion decree the wearing of shoes. Unfortunately, custom and fashion also decree the wearing of a good many shoes which are exceedingly peculiar from the point of view of maintaining a useful and healthy foot. It is not possible to fit every one individually with shoes, as people are fitted individually for other types of clothing. Therefore, the most that can be done apparently at this time is to educate people as to what is right in the fitting of a pair of shoes."

Worry of FALSE TEETH Slipping or Irritating

Don't be embarrassed by loose false teeth slipping, dropping or wobbling when you eat, talk or laugh. Just sprinkle a little FAS-TEETH on your plates. This pleasant powder gives a remarkable sense of added comfort and security by holding plates more firmly. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. It's alkaline (non-acid). Get FAS-TEETH at any drug store.

BORNEO

Borneo is one of the world's large islands. It does not equal Greenland or New Guinea in size, but it is larger than the state of California.

A "court of law" in Borneo. Borneo is a land of heavy rainfall. If the rain which falls in an average year stayed above the ground, it would flood the island to a depth of 17 feet. Happily the rain sinks into the rich black soil. Along with the sunshine and the soil, it makes plants grow well, and produces one of the thick jungles of the torrid zone.

Many of the brown-skinned people in Borneo are known as "Dyaks." They live away from the coast, and make their living mainly by farming and hunting. The Dyaks build homes which may remind us of the old "long houses" of the Iroquois Indians. A Dyak house may hold three or four dozen families.

Dyaks may speak of "a 30-door house" or "a 50-door house." This is the same as saying that the house is used by 30 or 50 families. Each family has a special door by which to enter. Some of the houses are from 400 to 600 feet long!

It is common in Borneo to build a house on posts. The posts may raise the floor to a height of 10 or 15 feet above the ground. The high-floored homes help to save the people from getting wet when the heavy rains make rivers rise in flood. There is also less worry about visits from pythons or other dangerous serpents.

The wild animals of Borneo include the rhino, the wild ox, the deer and several kinds of monkeys and apes. A little animal called the "mouse-deer" has much the shape of a large deer, but is no larger than a jack rabbit.

Borneo also has odd flying animals. These include flying foxes, flying lizards and flying frogs. None of these has flapping wings. The "flying" is really gliding, from a high place down to a low place. Among the other animals are the so-called "tiger-cats." They are not tigers—this island has no tigers.

Honey-bees, crocodiles, bats and badgers are common. Some of the Borneo birds are of families well-known on our continent—crows, pigeons, woodpeckers and owls. —(For Travel section of your scrap-book.)

Riddles, games and puzzles will be found in the "Funmaker" leaflet. If you would like a copy send a 3c stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

LITTLE SPITFIRE

By Jean Randall

wardly laughing at the idea of my being a writer."

"And that," Miss Burke commented elegantly, "burns you up, doesn't it?"

"It does indeed! I'll tell you something, Isabel — if you won't tell Mac! I've sold a story — sold it to The Monthly Comment!" She sat back, watching the effect of this stupendous announcement. It was all and more than she had hoped. Isabel grew positively pale with awe.

"Brenda Burnham, you haven't! The little author's head nodded emphatically.

"Now you see why it makes me so furious — so ab-so-lutely furious," she declared, "to have Mac look down his nose and smile with his eyes when I talk about my work."

"Have you told him — about The Monthly Comment?"

"No — didn't I just ask you to promise not to? I'm not going to have him know until it comes out. Then," she went on with youthful satisfaction, "I'll just carelessly hand him the magazine and he'll be good and sorry!"

Isabel hugged her knees. "Brenda, you're queer," she announced. "You're so contradictory. So grown up in some ways, so awfully young in others; so — so sophisticated, and at the same time so — well, I guess you'd call it sweet!"

"I don't like him!"

The dimples flashed amiably. "I'm more than willing you should call it that! Not all my friends, do you know."

To her delight, Isabel told her: "Yes, I can understand that, too! You can be pretty frank and decisive when you wish, I haven't a doubt," Mac said so," she added unthinkingly.

The dimples disappeared instantly and the dark brows drew together.

"I really don't see why Mac should be so interested in my manner, one way or another! I tell you, Isabel, I don't like that man! I'm sorry if it hurts your feelings, my dear, but I honestly think you're in luck — that he isn't in love with you, I mean. He's opinionated, he's so frightfully sure of himself, he's downright conceited!"

"No. No, he isn't, you little spitfire! He's sure of himself — he has a right to be. Why, if you knew all he's gone through to get where he is —"

"I haven't the slightest desire to know," she said about Hugh Saltus instead. "Now, there," she continued, warming to her subject, "is a man who is really interesting! I'm amazed that this neighborhood doesn't appreciate him more. He'd be a riot in New York. I can't imagine why he stays in this quiet place."

"He stays because it is quiet, I think. I know he said he could get more work done here than any place he'd ever lived. His critics are clever, I suppose, but I hate the cynical way he talks — the way he looks at one!"

"And I," Brenda declared, "find him the most thoroughly worthwhile person I've met in ages! I mean to cultivate him. Miss Ormond or no, Miss Ormond, Adelaide or no, Adelaide!"

"And cultivate him, she did, to the scandal of The Street."

Miss Ormond paid a personal visit to Adelaide to discuss the subject with her. She fixed a steady gaze on the perturbed face of Brenda's landlady and inquired:

"Are you aware that Brenda Burnham went to THAT MAN'S studio yesterday afternoon and stayed two full hours?"

Mrs. Rostetter said feebly: "It was in broad daylight, Miss Ormond!"

The ex-teacher sniffed. "As if that made any difference! Facts are facts, and the proprietress are the proprietress. Adelaide! If you're afraid to speak to Brenda I shall be glad to assume that duty! Perhaps," she went on, "she doesn't realize that Hugh Saltus is a married man. Perhaps she doesn't know his reputation is not — not quite savory?"

Brenda, passing the parlor door, overheard the last question.

"Whose reputation is not savory? It sounds like roasted poultry, somehow."

"We were talking of Mr. Saltus, my dear!" The caller eyed the girl's fresh youth sternly. "You may not be aware that it is unconventional to visit the most charitable interpretation on it — to visit him at his studio. On the other hand, I must bear in mind the fact that you come from New York where I am given to understand, incredibly free and easy relationships prevail in professional circles. All I can say," she added warningly, "is that this is not New York and that The Street has its own standards which even a Burnham will do well to observe."

Adelaide turned pale with apprehension at this dictum, but Brenda laughed.

"Advice and Counsel!"

"My dear Miss Ormond, you don't mean to imply that calling on Mr. Saltus — in the afternoon and with his middle-aged housekeeper in the adjoining room — is something The Street frowns upon? If it is, I'm afraid it will have to frown — even to scowl! For I mean to drop in on Hugh as often as he'll let me. I find his studio fascinating." She added, with a serene glance out of the window: "And Hugh himself even more so!"

Miss Ormond's sharp chin quivered. "This," she announced, "is the work of Those Twins!"

"Of Ab and Elaine?" Brenda shook her head, the deepest of the dimples denting the corner of her mouth. "I give you my word they never mentioned the studio to me. It was all my own idea. In fact, I practically got down on my knees and implored Hugh to let me drop in on him yesterday." She sat curled in a deep chair, the fingers of one slender hand clasped closely about her left ankle. She looked about sixteen, and so mischievous that Adelaide eyed her uneasily.

"Haven't you ever been there yourself, Miss Ormond? Oh, that's a pity! Perhaps if I begged Hugh very hard —"

"Please don't put yourself to any trouble! Nothing would induce me to visit that most unfortunate young man."

"Unfortunate?" Brenda sighed gustily. "I could use his special brand of misfortune! Everything he does sells at top price — magazines and syndicates clamoring for his work!"

"I referred to the loss of his wife!" Miss Ormond informed her stiffly.

Brenda's blue eyes widened. "Has he lost her? He doesn't think so. Are you quite sure, dear Miss Ormond? So many impossible rumors get abroad!"

The caller rose, pointedly addressed her hostess.

"My dear Adelaide, I sympathize with you! I thought your cup was full and running over when you took that homely Burke girl and the MacKelvey man; but little either of us knew what the future had in store for you! Remember — my advice and counsel are always yours for the asking!" Halfway to the door she paused and eyed the graceless child in the deep chair. "Even you," she finished pontifically, "may conclude me if the emergency becomes too great. You will find me lacking in Christian charity!"

"What on earth did she mean?" Brenda laughed when Adelaide, sighing, had rejoined her. "What emergency is she talking about?"

"Oh, Brenda child, I don't know!" Adelaide sneaked a few tears into her isolated henck relief. "But I do wish you hadn't started out by antagonizing her! She keeps her fingers on the pulse of The Street — as one might say — and it was most unfortunate that she knew of your visit to the studio yesterday!"

"But why?" The girl was genuinely puzzled. "Is there any harm in my dropping in to watch a famous cartoonist at work? Most girls would save their back teeth for the opportunity! And who is Miss Ormond that she should exercise any kind of censorship over The Street?"

She crossed the room and patted the older woman's shoulder consolingly. "Just don't pay any attention to her, that's the best way!"

Hollywood—Sometimes it seems futile to sit here, writing about movies and movie personalities, when, on the other side of the world, hundreds of thousands are horribly dying in the wreckage of all they held dear.

Yet it is RIGHT NOW that the motion picture should rise to its highest peak of usefulness as a medium of education and entertainment.

The minds of men are filled with gloomy forebodings. Their nerves, plucked at incessantly by gruesome reports of death and destruction, are stretched to the breaking point. Motion pictures can do much to lighten the gloom and ease the strain. They can keep us from forgetting that happiness and construction can flourish on an Earth

The people to do this important job are the very people whose names dot this and other Hollywood columns day by day — the Gables and Garbos, the Crosbys and Crawfords, the Durbins and Shearers and Eddys and Flynns. What they do on the screen in the next few months or years is vital.

What they do off-screen is vital, too. Their foibles have been spotlighted too long to escape attention even now. Being in the limelight, worshipped by millions, they have an ideal opportunity to be influential exponents of all those qualities which comprise "Americanism."

Because feverish interest in war news was disrupting work, Director William Dieterle banned radios from his sets. Soon after the banning, he investigated a suspicious babble coming from the prop room and there found a stagehand with earplugs to a small portable receiver.

"What's happened?" anxiously whispered the director, his own interest overcoming his determination to be strict. "Happened?" moaned the stagehand. "I've just lost five bucks on the Brooklyn Dodgers."

Weyauwega — Papers have been filed for five positions on the school board: Fay Prentice, Mrs. Lillian Shrieve, Dr. N. J. Jardine, Leo Richter, Mrs. Gladys Rieck and Mrs. Margaret Ewald. The first special election of the board will be held June 4. The present board, named under the old village plan, are Fay Prentice, Mrs. Lillian Shrieve and O. W. Weisman.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Robrick of Berlin entertained at Castle hall, Waukegan, for Mr. and Mrs. Sam Saltzman of Weyauwega, the occasion being their silver wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Saltzman have owned and operated the Fair store here for the last 24 years.

The first of a series of weekend railway trips from Chicago to Weyauwega brought about 30 fishermen to Hotel Dobbins.

The Young Women's guild of the local Presbyterian church closed the activities of the season with an outdoor picnic Thursday at the K. P. Van Epps home. Miss Mildred Larson was the hostess. Miss Dorothy Dobbins is president.

HE GOT IT

Houston, Tex.—(U)—A man was arrested for shop-lifting. Twenty minutes later he had been charged convicted, sentenced and was in the rowdy wagon on his way to the city farm to serve out his $50 fine.

"I wanted speedy justice and got it," he remarked ruefully.

AUNT JENNY SAYS — MAKE THIS SPRINGTIME PIE

Lighter cakes, too, and such crispy, digestible fried foods — thanks to Spry and its 3 EXTRA ADVANTAGES

"NOTICE how gleamin' white Spry is," says Aunt Jenny. "Spry looks purer an' it stays fresher longer, too, creams so easily. Three big extra advantages an' remember, only Spry gives all three! No sir, you can't touch Spry for quality. It's always been ahead. Get Spry today. See how it makes even your good cookin' better!"

SPRINGTIME PIE
2 cups rhubarb, cut in pieces
1 cup fresh strawberries
1 cup sugar
13/4 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
14 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
1 recipe Spry Pastry

Combine rhubarb, strawberries, sugar, tapioca and salt and pour mixture into oiled baking dish. Dot fruit with butter. Roll dough into rectangle about 14-inch thick and cut into 1/2-inch strips. Turn strips under a 1/2-inch edge. Seal edge of pie. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) 30 to 40 minutes. Serve in squares. Spry is. You'll love the flavor filling and flaky, easy-to-make Spry crust. Use Spry for all your pastries. Give wonderful cakes and fried foods, too.

SPRY PASTRY
1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 1/2 teaspoons Spry
3 tablespoons cold water (about)
Sift flour and salt together. Add 1 1/2 of Spry and cut in until mixture is as fine as meal. Add remaining water and continue cutting until particles are size of a navy bean. (Note how easily Spry mixes.) Sprinkle water gradually over mixture. With a fork, work lightly together until a dough is formed. (All measurements in this recipe are level.)
